

A development view component diagram showing the interaction between the different systems within the project.

The CRUD forms interact with the Enrollments and Courses repository layer of the app through the front-end interface which then communicates with the data access layer in order to process and receive data.

The login system communicates with the authentication system in order to validate a users credentials and permissions which are obtained from the user data access layer.

The Moodle courses system communicates with the Moodle database and access a list of courses currently created in Moodle in order to update the courses with the correct information

